GREG BELL
LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Dear Traveler,

I am pleased you are planning a visit to experience "Utah: Life Elevated." Our scenery, culture, and outdoor recreation represent the best of the Rocky Mountains and the Desert Southwest.

Our Mighty Five national parks, regrettably, have been temporarily closed since October 1st because of the federal government shutdown. But, we are doing all we can to restore access as soon as possible. Nonetheless, Utah is wide open with many additional scenic wonders for you to enjoy. Our 43 exceptional state parks present stunning landscapes and natural features that rival the splendor of our national parks. In addition, our many National Scenic Byways, including an All-American road, offer spectacular mountain and desert vistas.

Utahns have rallied together to give you a bigger welcome than ever. Here are some things you can count on:

- We will provide daily updates on VisitUtah.com, as we are able to restore access to national parks.
- Your national park pass will be honored at our state parks during the shutdown. Just present your annual pass at the entrance, and your admission is free.
- Custom itineraries are available at VisitUtah.com, with fall colors at the height of their glory.

These photographs give you a glimpse of the natural wonders you will enjoy in Utah during your scheduled visit.

Welcome to Utah! Best wishes for a memorable visit that will inspire you to return again and again.

Sincerely,

Gary Herbert
Governor
