

Art in the Depth of Pyrography on Wood

One man show for the month of February 2018

Premiere at Dixie State University Art Department Gallery, St George, Utah

"In the farming community where I grew up, every tool handle is passed through fire to bless it. The hoe blade was already forged by the blacksmith, but the wood handle will be specially blessed. Meals are traditionally cooked on firewood or charcoal. My work in pyrography is just an extension of these things I was raised around. It is part of the farming village scent."
